Open house in new premises

16 Oct 2014 09:10

Skara. On Wednesday the District Veterinarians in Skara held a grand opening and open house at their new premises at Danielstorpsgatan.

The District Veterinarians moved into their new premises, next to Skara Blomsterland, in July, but only now is everything completely renovated and ready. Vets Johnny Lindgren and Jari Kuusela note that the new premises are more suited to their purpose than the old premises (on Afsengatan).

"Here we have separate rooms for the lab, for examination and for operations," says Lindgren during a tour of the building.

People mainly come with dogs and cats to the District Veterinarians small animal clinic.

"We can examine more animals in the new premises," Johnny Lindgren explains. When it comes to larger animals such as horses and cattle, the District Veterinarians have an itinerant practice and go to the farms where the animals are. During the open house event, the premises were inaugurated by Håkan Henrikson, the District Veterinarians' Chief of Section in Sweden.

"Today we are also offering drop-in vaccinations and you can get a free clinical examination of your pet," says Lindgren.

Additionally, visitors were treated to refreshments and an organised quiz around the premises.
